Explanation of Fiscal Impact

State Expenditure

The “Sign Language Interpreters Act” provides for a minimal level of competency for sign language interpreters used by government institutions, public schools, judicial, and health care systems. Sign language interpreters will be required to register with the Department of Labor, Licensing and Regulation, which will maintain a registry of all interpreters on its website.

The State Department of Education. The department indicates that an average salary paid for a sign language interpreter within the school districts is $45,000. If each school district had one interpreter, the local expenditure impact would be $4,000,000. There would be costs associated with training and professional development. However, those costs are indeterminable at this time.

The Department of Transportation. (DOT) The agency states that there will be additional Other Fund expenditures by the agency of $79,063 if they are required to maintain a staff level sign language interpreter. This figure is based on the average salary of an interpreter of $50,000 annually for an experienced interpreter. They also included employee benefits for 2016 at 43.75% in the amount of $21,876. Additionally, they estimate a 10% cost for supplies and travel in the amount of $7,187. General Fund and Federal Funds would not be impacted.
